STATE SENATE PASSES SUNDAY SPORTS BILL

Senator Rice Votes Against Measure; Final Vote Is 27 To 22.

OPPONENTS TO PUSH FOR VETO

State Senator John S. Rice, of Arendtsville, representing the Adams-Franklin district, voted against the sports bill.

Harrisburg, April 12.—A long step toward Sunday baseball and football was taken Tuesday when the senate, by a vote of 27 to 22, passed the bill of Representative Louis Schwartz, Philadelphia, legalizing the games from 2 to 6 p. m. on the Sabbath.

The measure, after a career of vicissitudes in which it was made a shuttlecock between the two branches of the assembly, is now on the desk of Governor Pinchot, who has ten days in which to consider it before affixing his signature in approval or veto.

A vigorous fight to persuade the governor to veto the measure will be made by the Lord's Day Alliance and other organizations which are opposed to any form of repeal of the so-called Blue law of 1794.

So far, the executive has given no inkling regarding his attitude toward the bill, although some who are close to him believe he will approve the legislation.

November Vote Provided
In the event of approval by the governor, the Sunday baseball and football bill will be voted on by the people of the various municipalities at the elections of next November. Under the bill those communities which favor the proposal will approve and those who oppose can register an adverse verdict.

Under the most favorable circumstances there can be no professional Sunday baseball games in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other cities which support league teams before the season of 1934. In communities which approve the sports there may be Sunday football games this year after the election of next November.

WARN DRIVERS, WATCH KIDDIES

Spring Brings Danger To Motorists And Youngsters Playing In Streets.

"With spring weather luring children to play in the streets, a great responsibility is placed upon motorists and parents, and unless both take proper precautions this year, 1933 is likely to see a repetition of the frightful casualty record that marked 1932."

That warning was issued today by the local motor club, backed up by state statistics showing that 349 Pennsylvania children were killed and 7509 injured in the streets last year.

"The records show," said Henry M. Scharf, president of the club, "that more than one-third of these accidents occurred while children were playing games on streets and roads heavily traveled by motor vehicles."

"As we see it, responsibility rests first with parents; they cannot be unaware of the danger of unsupervised and unrestricted play in the highways. But failure of parents to keep their children off the streets does not relieve the motorist of the solemn duty to do everything humanly possible to safeguard children thus exposed to traffic perils."

"Our best advice to motorists is to take no chances where children are concerned. The motorist whose record is clear of accidents is the motorist who never assumes that a child is going to keep out of his way. He is prepared for the unexpected, and his cautious operation saves many children from death or injury. Every motorist can enroll in this class of careful drivers. The only qualification is common sense."

Twilight League Schedule Delayed

Two Sailor Survivors Say Wind Snapped Akron Girders

Lakehurst, April 12 (AP).—Lt. Comm. Edwin F. Cochran, assembling and repair officer at the naval air station, today testified at the naval hearing on the loss of the Akron that it had been planned, on her return from the last flight, to strengthen the ship's structure in the area in which two of the survivors said they saw two longitudinal girders break.

One of those girders was to have been strengthened he said.

Lakehurst, N. J., April 12 (AP).—A picture of the mammoth dirigible Akron dropping through darkness with its bow up at an angle of thirty-five degrees and hitting the water with a crash "like stepping on a penny box of matches" was given the naval court of inquiry Tuesday.

With the picturesque words of a sailor, Moody Erwin, aviation metal-smith, second class, told the story of the flight that cost seventy-three lives and his narrative broke at times the tenseness of the dignified courtroom.

The slender Erwin was one of three survivors of the disaster in the Atlantic off New Jersey a week ago last Monday night. He followed the two other survivors in the witness chair.

TRAIN SERVICE REPLACES BUS

Reports Current Reading Company Plans To Return Former Carlisle Train.

A report was current in Gettysburg and Biglerville today that the Reading company is planning to replace its bus service between Gettysburg and Carlisle with a passenger train between here and Harrisburg.

N. B. Schnurman, freight agent for the Reading company here, could not be reached today for a statement. Denton Stauffer, ticket agent for the Reading company, said he had heard the report of the change in service, but had not yet received official notification of the change.

According to unofficial reports, the railroad would again place into service a train, leaving here early in the morning and returning about 9 or 9:30 o'clock in the evening.

Bus Service Cut

Similar service was afforded residents of Gettysburg and Adams county before 1928 when this train was replaced by bus service between Gettysburg and Carlisle. At first, the bus made two round trips between Gettysburg and Carlisle each day, but recently the bus has been making only one round trip, leaving here at 6:02 a. m. and returning at 6:53 p. m.

The only passenger service into Gettysburg on the Reading at present is the so-called "milk train" which comes from Reading through Harrisburg, arriving here at 9:30 a. m., and leaving here at 12:30 p. m.

If another train is added on the reported schedule, residents of Gettysburg and Adams county will be able to go to Philadelphia and intermediate points and return the same day by train instead of by the present bus and train service.

State Gives $500 To Four Districts

Four Adams county school districts which are reported financially handicapped have been granted $500 each for current expenses by the state council of education. They are Berwick, Franklin, Hamilton and Liberty townships.

The grants were made from an appropriation of $1,250,000 made by the 1932 special session of the legislature for assistance to districts unable to meet their budget demands from local taxes and normal state aid.

COMMISSIONERS ORDER FILING OF TAX LIENS

Take Action Despite Failure Of Boards To Approve New Arrangement.

16 GROUPS IN COUNTY APPROVE

Balked in their efforts to secure unanimous approval of all school and road boards to a suggested plan of relief, the Adams county commissioners at their weekly meeting, Tuesday, voted to instruct all tax collectors in the county not to return delinquent taxes to them this year.

Under a Pennsylvania statute, passed in 1931, tax collectors this year were to return all delinquent taxes to the commissioners. The law provides, however, that where the taxing authority designates the returns shall not be made.

In February, the commissioners sent notices to all school and road boards in Adams county, asking their approval of a suggestion that no delinquent taxes in their districts be returned to them.

16 Boards Approve

After the school and road boards gave their assent, the tax collectors in the various districts were to be notified that delinquent taxes should be collected by the filing of liens in the office of the prothonotary and not returned to the commissioners.

So far only sixteen school and road boards, half of the total number in the county, have given their approval. Gettysburg's school board and town council are among those which have not given approval to the commissioners' plan.

The districts in which the plan of the commissioners was approved include Arendtsville, Bendersville, Butler township, Cumberland township, Franklin township, Freedom township, Hamilton township, Liberty township, Littlestown, McSherrytown, Mt. Joy township, Mt. Pleasant township, Oxford township, Reading township, Straban township and Union township.

One Course Remains

As a result of the board's action, Tuesday, tax collectors will have only one course to follow in the collection of delinquent taxes. That will be the filing of liens in the office of S. L. Allison, prothonotary. Collectors have three years after the year in which the taxes are levied to file liens for delinquent taxes.

Had the commissioners not taken the action they did, tax collectors would have had to list delinquent taxes in their office by the first Monday in May this year. With each return, the collectors would have had to file a description of the property on which the delinquent taxes rest, together with the name of the owner or reputed owner. The commissioners expected several thousand returns to be made to them.

The commissioners would then have been compelled to maintain a delinquent tax docket and establish a regular real estate business. The properties would have been held until August, when they would have been offered for sale, and failing in that, the board would have had to keep the properties and maintain them for two years, when another effort would have to be made to sell them.

SECRETARY PERKINS
O.K.'S 30-HR. WEEK BILL

Miss Perkins, after a conference with Secretary Roper and Senator Black, democrat, Alabama, author of the measure, announced, however, she would recommend modifications to make the legislation "more workable."

UNION SESSION

Pan-American Union Convenes; Receives Bust From Venezuela.

Washington, April 12 (AP)—Peace and elimination of trade barriers were held up by President Roosevelt today as the great needs of the American public.

Speaking to diplomats of the 20 other American nations at a solemn session of the Pan-American union governing board in the observance of Pan American day he called undeclared warfare between Paraguay and Bolivia and Peru and Colombia a "backward step."

His address had been anxiously awaited throughout the Americas whose statesmen have joined with the United States and the league of nations in vain attempts to obtain peace.

More important to some of them however was his proposal that the American governments move promptly to eliminate inter-American trade barriers. Standing before the great mahogany table from the Dominican Republic around which were seated the chief statesmen of 20 nations the president called upon their government to initiate steps to "abolish all unnecessary and artificial barriers and restrictions which now hamper the healthy flow of trade between the peoples of the American republics."

His address preceded presentation by Minister Pedro Araya of Venezuela in the Hall of the Americas of a bust of General Francisco Miranda, South American independence leader.

Secretary Hull received the gift and it was unveiled by the minister's daughter, Senorita Isabel De Araya.

The president said the role of the United States would be that of a "good neighbor." He told the diplomats, "has the significance of the word 'good neighbor' been so manifest in international relations. Never have the needs and benefit of neighborly cooperation in every form of human activity been so evident as they are today."

Rain Threatens
Baseball Opening

New York, April 12 (AP)—April showers falling generally along the eastern seaboard today threatened to spoil the opening of major league baseball in that section but a warm sun shown on the ball parks in the middle west and good if not ideal conditions were forecast.

It was a cold gray dawn for baseball players and fans in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington with a steady drizzle soaking the ball park and with no sign of a let-up. Even if the skies should clear the crowds would be expected to be slim.

A warm sun ushered in the opening day at St. Louis, Cincinnati, Chicago and Detroit.

Baltimore, April 12 (AP)—Rain and a forecast of overcast skies brought little prospect to the Baltimore Orioles for opening their International league season today against the Toronto Maple Leafs here.

BRITON ADMITS
RUSS CHARGES

Eleven Russian Companions Also Plead Guilty To Sabotage, Espionage.

Moscow, April 13 (AP)—W. H. McDonald, British employee of the Metropolitan-Vickers electrical company, and eleven Russian employees of the company today pleaded guilty to charges of espionage, sabotage and bribery.

Five of the British employees of the company pleaded not guilty.

The five other Englishmen are Allen Monkhouse, Moscow director for the Metropolitan-Vickers company; Charles Nordwell, L. C. Thornton, A. W. Gregory and John Cushman.

The eleven Russian employees of the company included one woman.

Their trial started this morning in "October Hall," the house of the Trades union, which was guarded closely by uniformed and bayoneted soldiers stationed inside and outside the corridors.

Four judges conducted the trial. Nine defense attorneys were in court, five of them representing the Englishmen.

The indictment charged that MacDonald had confessed engaging in military espionage and sabotage at Zlatoust electrical station where he worked, involving bribery of a large number of Russians to accomplish wrecking activities.

Fourth Of Pupils
In High Schools

More than one-fourth of Pennsylvania's public school children are enrolled in high schools, according to new attendance figures announced today by Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction. Of the estimated 2,000,000 children now in Pennsylvania schools, 554,974 are attending junior and senior high schools. This is an increase of more than 45,000 over last year's enrollment in high schools.

The number of high school graduates also showed a marked increase, and post-graduates this year are almost double the number enrolled for 1931-32. Graduates increased last year from 49,000 to 56,700, or fifteen per cent. This year the high school of Pennsylvania have 6,191 post-graduate students as compared with 3,162 last year, an increase of almost 96 per cent. The increased number returning to high school is due largely to inability of recent graduates to find employment or go to college. This group is being handled at very little additional cost to the taxpayer, Dr. Rule said.

9 GANGSTERS SENTENCED
FOR ROBBERY AGED MAN

Easton, April 12.—Nine members of a gang which participated in the beating and robbery of 79-year-old Joseph Snyder, Williams township farmer, were sentenced Tuesday in court here by President Judge R. C. Stewart, after four of the gang, who had elected to stand trial, changed their pleas to guilty, in the midst of the trial. The others previously had entered guilty pleas.

Noah Adams and Robert Lawrence, Williams township, and Charles and Frank Morrell, Trenton, New Jersey, who changed their pleas, received four and a half to nine years in prison. Louis Bartokovitz, finger man on the job, got three to six years. His brothers, Joseph and Charles, and Louis Motil, mere youths, led astray by the others, received three months suspended sentences. Andrew Viglione, 13-year-old Trenton boy, alleged crime phill of the Morrells, was paroled in custody of the Mercer county, New Jersey, county parole officer.

BULLETS PLAY
BALL APRIL 22

Spring Sports Program At College Expected To Attract New Enthusiasts.

Featuring a baseball game and a dual track meet in which the Bullets will engage the representatives of Drexel and Johns Hopkins, respectively, Gettysburg college will inaugurate its spring sports program Saturday afternoon, April 22.

Coach Ira Plank, who has been at the helm of Orange and Blue baseball for the past twenty-two years, is expecting to present another of his strong nines when the team lines up for the opening game. With a number of capable sophomores to bolster his pitching staff and assist the veterans with inner and outer defenses, Coach Plank expects his diamond performers to rank high in the new league's final standing.

This will be Gettysburg's first in league effort. In truth this will be the first season for the eastern Pennsylvania collegiate baseball circuit of which the Bullets are a member. They are anxious to place well, or perhaps follow the lead of the basketball team and capture the title. Other teams in the league include Bucknell, Albright, Lebanon Valley, Drexel, Ursinus and Juniata.

Home games include contests with Ursinus on Mothers' Day, Villanova on Memorial Day and Dickinson on alumni day of commencement week. Navy, Penn State and Swarthmore are three attractions for foreign fields.

Unit Move Closes
71 More Schools

School consolidations have gone forward in the present school year as directors in smaller districts found advantages in abandoning more one-room schools, according to reports from the state department of public instruction.

Seventy-one school buildings have been closed for consolidation in eleven counties since last September. Almost 3,500 pupils have been effected. Bedford county had the largest number of closed schools this year, the 380 pupils of fifteen schools going to three new consolidated schools. Montgomery county has eleven additional closed schools and their 725 pupils are in three consolidated schools. In Washington county ten schools were closed and two initial consolidations were organized. Closed schools in other counties include Allegheny with four; Berks, six; Carberry, three; Elk, two; Lackawanna, nine; Luzerne, four; Pike, five, and Susquehanna, two.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET FARLEY

Postmaster General To Talk Patronage With Pennsylvania Workers.

Stroudsburg, April 12.—Questions affecting federal patronage in Pennsylvania are expected to be decided next Saturday when Postmaster General James Farley and leaders of the democratic party in this state gather here for the Jefferson Day dinner to be given under the auspices of the Monroe county democratic committee.

National Committeeman Sedgwick Kistler will be one of the guests of honor. It will be the first public meeting of Joseph F. Guffey, leader of the Roosevelt forces in control of the democratic state committee and Kistler since their break more than a year ago.

Although the dinner was arranged purely as a county celebration, when it became known that Farley, Guffey and Kistler had accepted invitations to speak, it quickly developed into a state political function, and Democratic County Chairman, Leo Acherman has received telegrams from scores of democrats in every section of the state asking for reservations.

State Chairman Warren Van Dyke is to head a delegation from Harrisburg, and it is expected that democratic congressman from eastern Pennsylvania districts will gather there Saturday afternoon to talk with Guffey and Farley regarding the appointment of postmasters and other federal places in Pennsylvania.

At the dinner, Third Assistant Postmaster General Clinton B. Ellinger will give an address on "Thomas Jefferson," and there will be speeches by Farley, Van Dyke, Guffey, Kistler, Judge Samuel E. Shull, Congressman Francis E. Walter, State Representative Chester H. Rhodes, Dr. J. H. Shull and former Senator Harvey Huffman.

Bodies of the mother and the seven children have been recovered, and searchers were still digging in the ruins of the home for that of the father.

BANDITS MAY BE CALLED TO CONVICT ASSOCIATE

Lancaster, April 12.—Two members of the gang that held up and robbed the Mountville National bank will appear against Joseph Nonziato, 25, Trenton, New Jersey, if he refuses to plead guilty in his alleged part in the robbery, it was revealed Tuesday by District Attorney Paul A. Mueller. Four of the six bandits are serving from fifteen to thirty years in the Eastern penitentiary.

Nonziato is alleged to be the fifth member of the gang and the sixth is still at large.

The alleged fifth member of the gang was arrested in New York and fought extradition. He is now in the Lancaster county prison. The district attorney said he will ask a heavier sentence for Nonziato.

FARMER, HORSES, PLOW
TUMBLE INTO CAVERN

Uniontown, April 12 (AP)—Piercing an underground cavern, while ploughing on his farm, George Morgan, 52, his team of horses, and a plough, tumbled into an eight-foot pit.

One horse was killed and the other received a broken neck. Morgan, who escaped serious injury, directed twenty-five men who labored for several hours in raising the horses to the surface.

A tractor was used after a crane failed, the chain snapping under the weight of one of the horses.

Farmers explained that mining operations have been carried on under the farm, probably causing the cave-in.

New York, April 12 (AP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins and Bert Balchen sailed for Bergen, Norway, today to begin preparations for the Lincoln Ellsworth transantarctic expedition. Ellsworth and others in the party will meet Sir Hubert and Balchen at Bergen in June. The expedition will sail for Dunedin, New Zealand, thence to the south polar region.

Balchen, copilot in the transarctic flight of Richard E. Byrd's America, will sail on the liner Stavangerfjord, on which has been loaded the all-metal monoplane in which Ellsworth, as observer, and Balchen, as pilot, plan to fly back and forth across Antarctica. Talk of Armed Force
Heard in Treasure Hunt

Norfolk, Va., April 12 (AP)—Ri the Hall party did not await the outcome of the Bowdoin injunction which was dismissed Monday when Captain Bowdoin failed to post the required $3,000 bond. This party also is out to take possession of the wreck and begin salvaging operations.

It is not known here whether the crew of the Theresa and Dan is armed, but it was officially announced by John McElherton, chief diver with the Bowdoin party, that the men of the Sea Rambler and Sea Gull carried army rifles and were operating under orders to "protect the wreck by physical force if necessary."

"We spent thousands of dollars and months of back-breaking work in locating that wreck and blasting a hole ten feet square in her side in order to get at the treasure," McElherton said, "and we do not intend to let some one else step in and take advantage of what we've done. That wreck is sixty miles off the coast. It's 'no man's land' and belongs to the expedition that can hold it. We're already on the scene. We have the ships. We have the men and we have the guns. We're going to protect our property at all costs."

Informed of the possibility of a clash between the crews of the two expeditions, Commander William A. Benham, chief of staff to Captain W. J. Wheeler, commandant of the Norfolk division of the coast guard, declared the coast guard has no intention of sending a vessel out to the scene of the wreck to prevent hostilities, but added:

"The scene, Commander Benham explained, is without the territorial boundaries of the United States, but the vessels, flying an American flag are American territory and their crews are subject to the laws of the country."

Territorial cadets, trained to meet the difficulties of subduing a wild country and a wild race, are being appointed and the opportunities for advancement have attracted sons of leading families.

The White Cockatoo

By Mignon G. Eberhart

Chapter 9 THE SHOT

It was Sue Tally. It was not Sue Tally. It was Sue Tally.

I told myself that I was mistaken. I told myself that the light upon it had been too brief, too sudden and swift a flash to permit me to recognize any face. But I stared and stared at that unshuttered window and wondered what was back of those winking blank panes, and that strange, haunting resemblance to Sue Tally's face would not leave me.

Suddenly I was conscious that Lovschien had roused from his distraction sufficiently to note my gaze and follow it. I had the impression he had overlooked some pressing and urgent aspect of affairs. This impression was confirmed when he caught his breath sharply, slid a quick glance at me, and said suddenly:

"But I must go. There are things—Gretche with want—you and Father Robert can stay with the—this." His eyes indicated the thing at our feet.

"Wait," I said. "What room is that across there? What number is it?" The one with the shutters open."

His eyes were veiled and yet intensely aware of me and my question.

"You mean across the court there? That is about 34 or 35. Why?"

Not 19, then.

"Is it unoccupied?"

"Yes," He replied directly, without a shadow of hesitation.

"I saw a face just now in the window."

"No, no. You are mistaken. There is no one there."

"There certainly was a face there, Lovschien."

It seemed to me he looked faintly relieved at the implication that I did not know the face. But he said a word or two to the priest, who did not look around or reply, and waddled hurriedly away. At the end of the passage he met the little porter and stopped for a few words with him before he disappeared around the corner, and the porter hurried toward us.

Madame had called him, the porter said breathlessly, and he was to remain with us while Monsieur went to her assistance.

Turning into my room, I threw my coat over my shoulders and took a flashlight from my bag. The little porter watched me anxiously, and I said as I returned to the corridor:

"I'm going to look about the court. Back in a moment."

He did not seem reassured, but, of course, had nothing to say. Then I closed the door, saw the porter's bright eyes watching it and what he could see of me, stepped out of their range of vision, and snapped the button on my flashlight.

There were no signs of a struggle, but I could have expected none. There were no muddy footprints, for there was no mud; everything in the room was dry and cold and wind-swept. There were no cigar ashes. There were no coat buttons. There was nothing but a dark blotch, quite small, where the dead man had huddled.

I bent close to the worn stone and looked and looked, turning my flashlight here and there, and eventually I did discover a small red piece of what looked like hard rubber or very hard wax. It was rough and irregularly semicircular and about the size of a half-dollar. It bore no faint resemblance to any kind of clue. I put it in my pocket merely because it was the only thing except the dark patch on the stone and a dry brown leaf that the landing held.

It was just at that second that there was a sudden lull in the wind; everything, shadows and shrubbery and rattling windows, fell into dead quiet, and I heard an unguarded step on the stairway below me.

It wasn't any sound but a step; I knew that perfectly, and I daresay if the wind had not lulled just at that instant I should not be alive now. But I heard it and moved to one side in order to look over the curve of the railing. And at that very instant there were two sharp cracks of a revolver, my flashlight spun out of my hand and thudded somewhere below, the wind swooped down upon the courtyard with a crash and every light in the hotel went out.

My hand tingled but wasn't hurt. There was no sound but the hurrying of the wind, and I found myself running down the stairway, holding to the railing. There is no excuse for it, but that is what I did.

I encountered nothing on the stairway. If it was Lovschien who had shot at me—and I thought it possible—he would probably either follow me to finish the job or seek to reenter the hotel himself.

He certainly was not apt to reenter the hotel by way of the winding stairway and the corridor where the priest and the porter waited; if I followed the wall cautiously past the great iron gate below the entrance arch and then around the corner, opposite, I might catch him at the door of the lobby.

By this time I had cooled a trifle, and my progress was slower and more careful, and I wished I had some kind of weapon. Lovschien was fat, however, and out of condition. If I could get him before he had time to use his revolver—again something brushed my hand. This time it was not a shrub. It was a rough fabric and an arm, and I moved quickly away, and I hurled myself in its direction, tackling low as in football.

I caught only the flying end of some kind of garment which wrenched itself out of my clutch, my knees scraped the pavement, and there were three flashes of light from somewhere off at my left and three revolver shots that spat viciously through the tumult. Vaguely I thought it was lucky I was flat on the pavement and waited. There were no more shots, and the wind shrieked, and it was black as pitch everywhere.

I wished I had had the good sense to retreat before it was too late, and got cautiously to my knees, then swiftly to my feet and ran to my right a few steps. The sound made by the wind covered my own footsteps, but it also covered the sound of any movement he had made.

Cautiously, straining my ears to hear, I edged toward the wall of the north wing, not, however, toward the corner of the stairway. That, I thought, was where he would expect me to go; it would be natural for me to attempt to escape by the way in which I had entered the courtyard—an entrance which, I realized rather chillingly, had been entirely too precipitate. When someone starts shooting at you in the dark and you have no weapon at all, you can't help wishing vehemently that you were elsewhere.

Against the wall, with some kind of small tree in a tub at one side of me, I waited. If he approached from the side of the shrub I would hear him or feel him and have some warning; then, since you'd rather take a chance than stand still and be shot, I could take him perhaps unexpectedly and have a better chance in a fight.

Presently I began to work quietly toward the door to the lobby. The entrance gates were locked, Sue had said; he would not deliberately enter the hotel by the north-wing corridor above, and the only place left was the lobby door.

I encountered no one and heard nothing but the wind. And I had not more than arrived at the lobby door when the light suddenly flashed up; the light swaying above the entrance, throwing the court into the shadows and empty white spaces again; the light from my door above; and now a light in the lobby beside me.

I stepped aside from the door into the shadow and waited again. There was nothing to be seen but the shadows and the bending shrubs and trees in the courtyard.

Defeated and angry, I opened the lobby door. Madame, her red hair shining under the desk light, looked up at me, a quick flash in her green eyes.

"Your husband just came in by this door," I said. "Where is he?"

"No one entered by that door," she replied crisply. The cockatoo chattered, and she added: "Hush, Pucci!"

LOOKING AROUND--

By DonBee

Although the schedule of the Adams county firemen's league must undergo some revision it appears likely that each of the teams will play quite a few doubleheaders during the season. The original layout called for several teams having as many as four twin bills.

The New Oxford firemen are not scheduled for the customary double-header played on July 4. Previous to joining the league the New Oxford team had arranged for a four-day trip to Maryland and Virginia at that time and dates will be so arranged as to allow the trip.

Each team will be allowed to have a roster of twenty-three men. One umpire must be provided by the home team for each game with the visiting team having the privilege of carrying an umpire to assist.

Manager Johnny Keller is hoping to have his squad report for its initial workout late this week or early next week. Only three weeks remain before the opening game on Saturday, May 6. Several clubs have already been working out.

Sunday baseball will be played at one park in the county during the season, Centennial planning to shift many of its tilts from the list of double-headers scheduled. Last year, playing independent ball, the Centennial club drew large crowds on Sundays.

"Doc" Crist's entry in the Twilight league will henceforth be known as the Old Timers. The team held its initial workout last evening despite the cold weather. Their first game will be played at Littlestown, Wednesday, May 3. The Old Timers will play most of their early season games on foreign fields until the academy closes when they will establish the prep diamond as their home grounds.

Biglerville and Fairfield high schools play their second league game Thursday afternoon at Biglerville. The game was originally listed for Friday but was changed by mutual agreement. Littlestown plays at New Oxford and Arendtsville at York Springs in the other league tussles.

The eastern Pennsylvania collegiate baseball league will play a twenty-one game schedule in its first season. Teams will meet every other team once. Members are Albright, Bucknell, Drexel, Gettysburg, Lebanon Valley, Juniata and Ursinus.

HOLLYWOOD LAGS

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Local Miscellany: The local lodge of Daughters of Liberty held an enjoyable social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Culp, South Washington street, Wednesday evening.

At the monthly meeting of the Civic Club held Friday afternoon, it was decided to start the sprinkling about May 1 or earlier and to continue for six months. Mrs. Sal-

Read The Bible With Us Daily

And immediately, while he yet spake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude with swords and staves, from the chief priests and the scribes and the elders.

And he that betrayed him had given them a token, saying, Whosoever I shall kiss, that same is he; take him and lead him away safely.

And as soon as he was come, he goeth straightway to him, and saith, Master, Master; and kissed him.

And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

And one of them that stood by drew a sword, and smote a servant of the high priest, and cut off his ear.

And Jesus answered and said unto them, Are ye come out, as against a thief, with swords and with staves to take me?

I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not; but the Scriptures must be fulfilled.

And they all forsook him, and fled.

And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth cast about his naked body; and the young men laid hold on him:

And he left the linen cloth, and fled from him naked.

And they led Jesus away to the high priest; and with him were assembled all the chief priests and the elders and the scribes.

And Peter followed him afar off, even into the palace of the high priest; and he sat with the servants, and warmed himself at the fire.

And the chief priests and all the council sought for witness against Jesus to put him to death; and found none.

For many bare false witness against him, but their witness agreed not together.

For there arose certain, and bare false witness against him, saying,

We heard him say, I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands.

But neither so did their witness agree together.

And the high priest stood up in the midst, and asked Jesus, saying, Answerest thou nothing? what is it which these witness against thee?

But he held his peace, and answered nothing. Again the high priest asked him, and said unto him, Art thou the Christ, the Son of the Blessed?

And Jesus said, I am; and ye shall see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

Then the high priest rent his clothes, and saith, What need we any further witnesses?

Ye have heard the blasphemy: what think ye? And they all condemned him to be guilty of death.

And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to say unto him, Prophecy; and the servants did strike him with the palms of their hands.

The room in the Eckert building, occupied until April 1 by Seligman and Brehm, is being fitted up as an additional room to Mr. Eckert's already large establishment.

The directors of the Bendersville National Bank have elected H. J. Taylor, of Altoona, cashier. For about a month he will be assisted by his brother, I. L. Taylor, of the Gettysburg National Bank.

HOME-SINGING

About the piano we gather once more,
To sing the old songs in the old-fashioned way.
Should young friend or old come to tap on our door,
"Crowd into the circle and warble!" we say.

So here's to old trouble and failure's harsh sting,
We'll keep them outside just so long as we sing.

We've dug out the books of our favorite songs
And all the collections of ballads and hymns.
Now once more the family's where it belongs,
For we've done with our foolish, extravagant whims.

Perhaps what has happened's a very

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TALK

TAKE talk out of the world and there wouldn't be very much left. Strike everybody dumb and abolish all printed talk—and what a place this world would be!

Yet, with all the talk that is in the world, how very uninteresting most of us are, with so much to draw upon.

Few arts can excel that of the good talker. Not all, however, can be good talkers, but all can be good listeners, and thereby learn to be good talkers. There is no more interesting talk than that gathered from a radically mixed group. And among the uneducated, though learned, you get your most stimulating talk.

The other evening I listened to the talk of a chap who had gone through so many unusual experiences—and told them so well—that he could have entertained a hundred as easily as he did the half dozen that evening. One thing that made his talk so interesting was his accurate ability to observe and to master knowledge that came to him in fragments. Even technical knowledge may be made interesting and instructive, if the one who uses it has the ability to understand the simplest elements of human nature.

I like to listen to a man talk about his own life and achievements—if he has done anything worthy or useful. Nothing is more absorbing than to listen to the experiences and ideas of a man who has overcome difficulties, created something, or added to a better understanding of something that someone else had started.

I have never met anyone from whom I could not learn something—if no more than to keep silent!

Quiet talkers are always the most fascinating. Cowboys, old miners, sea captains, tillers of the soil have always been favorites of mine. I would rather listen to any of them than to college professors, money kings, or statesmen. They keep their talk so much nearer to the ground.

Nearly everyone will listen to anyone with something to say, however!

good thing,
Since it's brought us together at night-time to sing.

Oh, I can't keep a tune and my voice isn't much,
But for years that piano's been idle and still,
And it may be that mother's lost some of the touch
In her fingers so gentle and some of her skill.

But it's good once again to have rafters that ring
With the laughter and joy of the songs that we sing.

We are home and together, not wandering out
Seeking pleasures afar, and I often declare,
As to sing some old music we gather about,
That we can be merry in spite of our care.

Once more we're united, so let the tune swing,
There's little can harm us so long as we sing.

ANNOUNCEMENT

If you desire to balance your budget, keep your expenditures within your income. This applies to the family budget the same as it applies to government.

As a taxpayer of Gettysburg Borough it has been my experience as, no doubt, it has been the experience of many others, to make the necessary economic adjustments.

After careful consideration and consultation with many friends, it seems evident that these adjustments can not be made without cooperation. With this thought in mind, it occurs to me that if economy is the fundamental idea, then why not begin with reduction of cost of collection of taxes. The taxes we pay are used for maintenance of our government, National or State, and the subdivisions thereof, and systems created thereby, Borough, County and School. It is my belief that taxes in this Borough can, under present conditions, be collected for one-half of the present allowance for the year 1932, and the Collector receive fair and adequate compensation for such services.

Prompted by this thought and guided by a spirit of cooperation in the effort to encourage more economic administration, I respectfully submit my name as a candidate for nomination by the Republican Party for the office of Tax Collector of the Borough of Gettysburg. If elected, I agree to give my best endeavor to collect such taxes as may be levied, and agree to accept in full compensation for such services one-half of the amount allowed for such services during the past year 1932.

Justice Agent's Home Is Bombed

New York, April 12 (AP)—dynamite explosion early Tuesday wrenched the front of the home of William Geisler, department of justice agent who is engaged in confidential investigation here for the government.

The blast broke windows in fifteen houses nearby and threw a residential neighborhood of Elmhurst, Queens, into panic. No one was hurt.

Geisler who said he saw three automobiles speed past the house shortly before the explosion refused to tell detectives the nature of the investigation he has been making.

Man Cleared Of Murdering Father-in-law

Laurel, Md., April 12 (AP)—Charles W. Flaig was shot and killed at his home near Laurel Tuesday by his son-in-law, James Truman Ballan who later was exonerated by a coroner's jury.

A verdict of "justifiable homicide" was returned by the jury. Ballan, his wife and Flaig's wife testified at the inquest and all asserted that Flaig seized a shotgun and announced he would kill them all.

According to testimony before the jury Flaig was under the influence of liquor when he returned to his home about 4 a. m. Tuesday. He started beating his step-daughter, Ballan's wife, and his own wife and then grabbed a shotgun. Before he could use it Ballan raised another shotgun and fired, the load taking effect in his temple. He died instantly.

8 Killed In Two Plane Accidents

Bordeaux, France, April 12 (AP)—Eight persons were killed Tuesday in two airplane accidents.

Five naval petty officers died when a navy seaplane fell into a lake near Berre during a night flight. Three civilians were killed when a plane crashed and burned in the forest near Seignosse. The pilot landed safely with a parachute.

HIRENS HENS AT CENT A DAY TO HATCH GOOSE EGG

Huntington, N. Y., April 12 (AP)—A man with some goose eggs and no hens to hatch them was the problem that momentarily baffled the Huntington Barter exchange.

The exchange manager, however, soon rose to the occasion. Consulting a list of chicken fanciers, he was able to arrange for the required number of hens on a basis of one cent a day rental.

Belgian Hitches Two Balloons For New Stratosphere Flight

By Edouard Traus

Brussels (AP)—Max Cosyns, the young Belgian physicist who accompanied Professor Auguste Piccard on the latter's second ascent into the stratosphere last summer, is in training for a June attempt of his own on the world's altitude record.

An assistant balloon, acting as a sort of a brake, will be attached to the "P. R. N. S.," the bag which Piccard used, in this third expedition into the higher strata.

Piccard's training for the trip has been laid out with the object of qualifying him as a licensed balloon pilot. Demuyter has been coaching him and the two have made several ascents in the "Belgica." On one of these training trips they drifted from Brussels to a point near Chemnitz in Saxony.

The big double ascent will start from southern Belgium. Piccard's second flight began at Zurich Switzerland and ended when he brought his balloon down on a lake shore in Italy.

In his first trip into the stratosphere in 1931 he reached 51,793 feet and bumped to a landing on an Alpine glacier where rescuers reached him only with great difficulty.

Belgium Wants Record
At 30,000 feet the brake balloon will cut loose and Cosyns' craft will rise to its "ceiling." It is hoped that this will be above the 54,776 feet recorded by Piccard when Cosyns was along merely as an assistant.

HEAD PLAY IS DERBY HOPEFUL

Horse, Purchased For $550, Looks As A Potential Derby Winner.

By Kenneth Gregory

Nashville, Tenn. (AP)—In the turf campaigns of the spring Tennesseeans will cast more than a passing glance upon the performance of a native son's entry in the fifty-ninth renewal of the Kentucky Derby.

Head Play, an orange chestnut colt by My Play out of Red Head, is the prized nominee for the blue ribbon event of the turf to be run over the Churchill Downs oval at Louisville, May 6.

Willie Crump, a native of Nashville who was a leading jockey a few years back, has entered Head Play in the rich stake under the name of his wife.

Feared he was "stung" Unusual color is attached to the entry of Head Play, for his owner paid only $550 for him as a juvenile. He was purchased at an auction sale at Lexington, Kentucky, in 1931.

When Head Play was led out the first bid to echo in the air was $500. Willie Crump, countered with a bid of $50 more, and the auctioneer cried "Sold" as he dropped his gavel.

Crump, who quit the saddle several years ago to become a trainer and owner, went to the auction prepared to pay much more for the colt. He was startled when he obtained the horse as such a low figure—really afraid he had been "stung."

Turned Down $15,000 But Head Play has turned out to be worth many times his purchase price. In twelve races as a two-year-old he was victorious five times, placed second twice and was third twice. Only a few weeks ago Crump said he refused an offer of $15,000 for the colt.

In a few days Crump plans to take Head Play to Lexington for the spring racing program, where he will prepare the Derby entry for the big season ahead.

While there will be much scientific observation on the flight, the main object of the attempt will be to bring to Belgium the world's altitude record. It now is held officially by Switzerland since Professor Piccard, although a teacher at the University of Brussels, is a Swiss.

Like the other two super-ascents, this June attempt will be financed by the Belgian national fund for scientific research.

Cosyns' training for the trip has been laid out with the object of qualifying him as a licensed balloon pilot. Demuyter has been coaching him and the two have made several ascents in the "Belgica." On one of these training trips they drifted from Brussels to a point near Chemnitz in Saxony.

The big double ascent will start from southern Belgium. Piccard's second flight began at Zurich Switzerland and ended when he brought his balloon down on a lake shore in Italy.

In his first trip into the stratosphere in 1931 he reached 51,793 feet and bumped to a landing on an Alpine glacier where rescuers reached him only with great difficulty.

Fight On Bovine TB Is Decade Old

April 16, 1933, marks the tenth year of intensive effort by the bureau of animal industry, state department of agriculture, cooperating with federal and local agencies, to free Pennsylvania herds of bovine tuberculosis and thus remove one of the common sources of human tuberculosis and reduce losses from disease in livestock production.

A fact of historic significance is that the first tuberculin test on a herd of cattle for the control of bovine tuberculosis in America was performed in Pennsylvania at the request of the owner of a large herd of pure bred cattle in Delaware county in March, 1892. This was the beginning of an important health movement which has since spread into practically every community in the nation.

While individual herd testing has been carried on in the commonwealth during several decades, not until 1923 was a concerted effort made to test every herd in an entire township or county in order to have tuberculosis-free areas. Just ten years ago, on April 16, initial "area" work started with the testing of all the herds in Mercer county (thirty-two townships), four townships in Crawford county and four townships in Butler county. Mercer county is qualified as an accredited county in May, 1924, being the first declared free of bovine tuberculosis in the state. Crawford was accredited in November, 1924. There are now fifty counties on the accredited list with Franklin as the most recently added.

193 Corporations Secure Charters

Letters patent were granted to 193 Pennsylvania corporations by the secretary of the commonwealth during March. They paid $7,603 bonus on $3,801,960 capital stock.

Bonus payments on increases of capital stock amounted to $6,687. Of the sum collected on capital stock increases, $2,589.79 was on delinquencies totaling $718,500, uncovered by the corporation bureau. The payments included $512 interest.

The total amount paid into the state treasury by the department in March was $28,967.58.

TROUT FISHERS AWAIT OPENING

State Trout Season Opens On Saturday, April 15; List Outstanding Districts.

Trout fishermen, in anticipation of the "big day," April 15, opening of the season for brook, brown and rainbow trout in Pennsylvania, are now mapping plans for their initial invasion of the streams. While trout are to be taken in streams in many sections of the state, according to the fish commission, waters in four districts, the north tier counties, north central counties, central counties, and the Pocono Mountain section, are outstanding. Occupying first rank as trout producers are streams in counties of the north tier—McKean, Potter, Tioga, Bradford and Susquehanna. Waters in these counties afford ideal conditions for fishing and yield heavy catches of trout each year. From the angle of numerous streams, and scenic beauty, Potter county is highly attractive to fishermen.

Included in the list of Potter county waters are Pine creek, Ludington creek, Marsh creek, Nine Mile creek, Big Moore's run, Lyman creek, Kettle creek, Lyman run, Cross Forks creek, Prouty run, Eleven Mile creek, Genesee Fork, East and South Forks of the Sinnemahoning, Genesee river, Genesee Fork, Dingman's run, East and West Branches of Fishing creek and Fishing creek.

McKean county has many good streams. Included in the list are East and West Branches of Kinzua creek, Two Mile creek, Portage creek, Martin creek, Chappell creek, East Branch Tionesta creek, Marvin creek, Potato creek, Sugar run, East and West Branches Tunungunt creek and Willow creek.

In Tioga county the Tioga river, Asaph run, Pine creek, Phoenix run, Kettle creek, Cedar run, Long run, Canada run, Mill run, Baldwin run, and Elk run are included in a list of fine trout waters.

Good catches are also made in streams of Bradford and Susquehanna counties each year. Among outstanding streams of Bradford county are Seeley creek, Schrader creek, Tioga river, Mill Stone creek, South Fork, and North Branch of Towanda creek. Listed with the favorites of anglers trying Susquehanna county's trout waters are East Branch Tunkhannock creek, Butler creek, Starrucca creek, Beebe creek (headwaters of East Branch Wyalusing creek), Meshopogon creek, Gaylord creek, and Tunkhannock creek.

BIGGER CUPS EASE TENSION

Greater Percentage Of Short Putts Made; Little Effect On Longer Ones.

By Allan Gould

Two of the things we still are convinced of, after reading an analysis of professional performances with the six-inch golf cups in the Miami $5,000 Florida-Year-Round Clubs Open tournament: (1) that the bigger hole takes the tension off the short putts, those of six feet or less, and (2) that it is no easier to get down the long ones, those of 15 feet or more.

It seems to us that both pieces of evidence strengthen the case for a bigger cup, especially from the ordinary player's viewpoint. So far as the pros were concerned in their 72-hole test of the larger tin, only Paul Runyan, the lightweight winner and 1933 Ryder Cup choice, indulged in a real scoring spree. Runyan's ten-stroke margin over his nearest rival, Charley Guest, was due exactly to eight birdies and an eagle.

In other words Runyan, on the greens in par on 55 of the 72 holes capitalized 23 of his chances to break par by his fine approaching. Guest, with 47 opportunities to crack par, took advantage of only 14. Deadly Inside Six Feet The striking feature of the putting analysis with these six-inch cups is that among the first ten professionals and the leading amateur, Johnny Goodman, only six putts out of 74, measuring six feet from the hole or less, failed to drop. The percentage
